He said that at the beginning of his career he only worked at a distro and was required to increase the distro's income, but when he succeeded, Reza was only given 5% of the profits, from there he was determined to be able to have his own business. Reza's expertise in developing the business world on social media has made his name rise to the occasion of being "endorsed" from within the country and abroad. Reza is a person who can use social media well and use it properly and guide his "younger brothers" in using social media not only for entertainment.
