HumasUPNVJ - In accordance with government directives regarding the end of the 2023 Eid al-Fitr holiday, the Jakarta "Veteran" National Development University (UPNVJ) resumed activities on the first day of work on Wednesday, April 26, 2023.

Not just coming to the office, the UPNVJ academic community immediately 'gaspol' worked to complete various things that had been delayed during this year's Eid holiday season.

"In accordance with the transformation commitment to achieve excellence, Alhamdulillah, we can carry out UPNVJ campus operational activities according to the policies set by the government," said UPNVJ Chancellor Dr. Anter Venus, MA. Comm.

He emphasized that all UPNVJ activities on the first day of post-Eid work were running normally as usual before the holiday moment. According to him, all UPNVJ staff must provide full service to all stakeholders who need it.

A similar statement was made by the UPNVJ Deputy Chancellor for Student Affairs and Cooperation (WR 3), Dr. dr. Ria Maria Theresa, SpKJ., MH. He was of the opinion that UPNVJ should immediately 'step on the gas' on the first day of work.

"UPNVJ goes to work as usual, does not do halal bihalal. UPNVJ complies with government statements," said Ria.

"We all have to go to work, there is no reason to be lazy or anything else," he continued.

Supervising student affairs, Ria immediately led a meeting with the vice deans on the first day of work. According to him, work that had been delayed during Eid should be completed at the first opportunity.

"The Chancellor has also been working as usual, the deans from all faculties are the same," said Ria.
